Water rights hearing on new dam delayed eight months

By NANCY HILLS

THE STATE water rights hearing for the proposed New San Clemente Dam has been postponed for at least eight months while the district tries to answer the many challenges to the project and its draft environmental impact report/statement.

The action was a joint decision on Dec. 17 by the staff of the State Water Resources Control Board and the staff of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. The state board conducts the water rights hearings.

The hearing is one of the most important steps in the permitting process for a water supply project. All waterways in California are considered state, not local, resources and the board determines water uses and settles water rights disputes.

Currently, there are at least 14 claimants for water from the proposed New San Clemente Dam on file with the state.

Water management district general manager Bruce Buel said he informed the state water rights staff that the district would be unable to adequately address all the questions submitted on the draft EIR by the scheduled April 1988 hearing.

Buel said he believed it might be completed by January 1989, but a new hearing date has not been set yet.

The State Water Resources Control Board requires that the applicant have at least a draft EIR at the hearings and it must be as nearly complete as the final document.

While the resources control board is not part of the EIR certifying process, it relies upon the EIR during the hearing for information about the project under review.

Both Buel and assistant water rights chief Lloy Johnson said the district's document still leaves too many questions unanswered to serve that purpose and could be substantially changed in the next few months.

Additionally, the state board cannot render its decison until the final EIR is certified.

Among the pivotal items the state board will rule on is what water releases the district will have to make from the dam for the steelhead trout.

The district also heard on Dec. 17 that the state board will conduct hearings on the application without a certified EIR. The district had been waiting about a month for that decision. If the document needed to be certified, it could add substantially more time to the project's timeline.

District voters approved the concept of a dam as a water supply project on Nov. 3 with an almost 2 to 1 margin. Without any delays, such as this eight-month one, the dam would have been on line in 1992.

•

WATER BOARD chairman Dick Heuer said the delay was disappointing but not surprising.

"There are so many hurdles we have to jump over that any

Big city politics

Dear Editor:

City Hall was snookered last week. The chief lobbyist for the Pine Inn cooked up a bad deal for private underground parking at three city-owned lots intended for public use. This same individual serves as a key advisor to the mayor, a direct conflict of interest. It looks like big money and big city politics are coming to Carmel.

For health, safety and business profit, the Pine Inn must undergo redevelopment. The answer to cover the cost is more room units and commercial space. More parking is essential to increase the value of the Pine Inn. The natural commercial instinct is to get thick with the city council.

This deal is being rushed through without study of its far-reaching impacts. All downtown businesses should have equal treatment under the same set of rules, none singled out for special favors. Above all, residents and their library should come first.

The library gets hurt. It foregoes its contract rights to parking land and the ultimate loss of a new source of revenue from parking and other linkage fees. It gets no assurance of adequate patron and employee parking. The visual backdrop for Carmel's most important public building is destroyed for lack of planting space for "scattered" tall trees which build up the city-in-the-forest look. Businesses, too, get hurt. Passing off the remaining downtown open space will move Carmel to just another tourist town and lower profits in competition against the rest of America.

Astonishingly, this parking plan puts Carmel squarely in the real estate business contrary to last year's pledges by city council members. City councils which favor one-bidder deals tend to approve "sweetheart" terms and conditions in the contracts. The current council already did that for Toots Lagoon and the side entrance on Piccadilly Park when it converted public land to increase profits for a single private business. Later, the council cops out with the excuse that things might have been better, but we can't change a done deal. The Pine Inn deal is no different, only bigger and considerably more complex.

Long-term land leases of public real estate are tricky: fair-share of construction costs, overhead, and city staff and consultant time; insurance, repair and maintenance, and safety matters which change over the years; lost rents due to lag times on inflation indexing; specifics in the formula for inflation indexing of rents; lost rents due to unequal real estate interests which diverge in value over the years; routine re-appraisal and arbitration of fair rents for the same reason; change in fair-share operating expenses for the same reason; profits from sale or sub-let of tenant rights; and, much more.

Professional negotiators for long-term land leases are scarce, seldom available for totally impartial public service. Litigation with the owners of the Pine Inn, particularly subsequent owners after resale, will be unending. Add a heady dose of politics to all of the foregoing and the burden is unbearable.

This fuss should be quickly aborted. We all make errors. It is no bitter pill for city hall to back out of public land for a private profit, or protect public coffers including that of the library, or prevent litigation by staying out of tricky partnerships, or avoid harm to residents who are denied downtown parking space, or encourage local trades and businesses by more parking for their employees and for residents, or provide off-street parking for both city hall and library employees, or defend the visual setting of the library. The dark side is failure of leadership at city hall if these things are not done.

Residents, many of whom are elderly, want solutions to their own parking woes, not those of the Pine Inn.

Reasons explained

Dear Editor:

In reference to David Leland's article in the Pine Cone concerning the Sunset Cultural Center, the planning commission believes the reasons the project did not meet the general plan should be presented. The general plan prohibits projects that would have an adverse effect on the adjoining residential area. Following are the adverse effects of the proposed auditorium discussed by the planning commission.

The 1,500-seat auditorium would require 300 parking spaces, which is greater than the total number in the proposed parking facility at the north end of the site. Consequently, the onstreet parking would inundate the adjacent residential area, which is already adversely affected by the Sunset Center activities.

Besides the occasional cultural events that require a 1,5000-seat auditorium, it would be necessary to allow the facility to be used for meetings and large-scale conferences. These activities would not only affect the surrounding residential area, but would flood the commercial area with additional visitors. The traffic entering Carmel under present conditions backs up to and along Highway 1 on weekends. The additional traffic caused by activities generated by the proposed auditorium would further complicate this major traffic problem.

In view of the above problems and in keeping with the overwhelming number of presentations made at general plan public hearings requesting the reduction of commercial development, the planning commission determined the use was inconsistent with the general plan.

In reference to the proposed parking structure, the approval was based on the fact that it is an approved use in A-1 zone, Theatrical District, and that the site is presently being used as a parking lot. The public has indicated approval of such a use by their answers to the 1985 citizens' questionnaire.

The design of the parking structure must be approved by the planning commission. The criteria for the design would require that the upper floor of the structure be level with San Carlos Street and that the upper level be devoted to park or public use with minimal parking, if any, on that level.

Don't let it happen

Dear Editor:

Being a resident of Carmel I am concerned with the direction development is taking in Carmel and I feel that well-planned controls should be put in place in order to preserve the quality of life in this city.

I fully support the recommendation by the Carmel Planning Commission that an environmental impact report on all properties in the R-4 zone be developed. It should include the impact of the various possible uses of the Handley property. Citizens of Carmel have indicated they want an EIR and certainly the city council and the citizens need the information in order to make an intelligent decision on the R-4 zoning problem.

There are some glaring examples of California cities which have allowed excessive and poorly planned development to take place. These cities are plagued with traffic congestion, overcrowding, environmental pollution, etc. As a result there has been an adverse effect on the quality of life in these cities. Do not let it happen here.

Learn from the ancients

Dear Editor:

The new show coming to the PG Museum on Dec. 19 should give an opportunity to reflect on what we can and should have learned from these ancients. The Anasazi World which depicts inhabitants of our great southwest desert produced some excellent farmers and high, intensive irrigation and water systems especially in Chaco Canyon in the Four Corners area of New Mexico.

Water and climate variations became a major factor in these patches of civilized Indians. What really happened to disintegrate the Chaco habitats in the 13th century should be studied closely by our California farmers and their heavy use of irrigation water. We may be headed for a similar disaster and dispersal of populations when the climate patterns return abruptly in those earlier long droughts for the Indian culture.

Anyway, we who live on the periphery of this vast southwest desert would do well to partake of this chance to relook at the ancient civilizations in these parts of the world. Why make the same mistakes some of those tribes made? See you at the museum.

Soulful exuberance

Dear Editor:

Simic Gallery's David Dalton reception Dec. 12 was wonderful. David's soulful exuberance thrilled this patron. Bravo David! Art, wonderful, beautiful art; enjoyed to the max! Bravo. I must allow, however, that a wonderful Chardonnay must be served a few degrees above freezing, to be enjoyed thoroughly.

Distressing decision

Dear Editor:

I am distressed by the decision of the Carmel City Council at its Dec. 8 meeting to postpone the initiation of an Environmental Impact Report on the R-4 Specific Plan. I was also discouraged by attempts of two of the councilmen to remove the starch from the petition asking for an EIR signed by more than 1,300 Carmel citizens with suggestions that the citizens did not understand what they were signing. Let's give our voters credit for a few brains!

The Carmel Planning Commission discussed the merits of postponing the EIR until completion of negotiations for purchase of the Handley property and voted unanimously to recommend that the EIR be initiated immediately — not later.

If this postponement were purely a financial decision to save the city money, I might be persuaded that it's not all bad. I could accept it if the intent is exactly that — a postponement until the Handley negotiations are finished. However, the fact that both attorneys representing the landowners argued so strongly for this postponement, especially when it would delay Mr. Murphy's plans for development, makes one wonder if they feel that postponement is synonymous with abandonment.

I will give the city council the benefit of the doubt and assume that they will listen to the many citizens who would be extremely unhappy if any development of the R-4 were approved without an EIR.

Many thanks

Dear Editor:

The city of Carmel-by-the-Sea and the Community/Cultural Commission wish to thank the many local businesses, community and fraternal organizations, and individuals who helped to make this year's Christmas in Carmel such a successful community activity. Special thanks are extended to John Farr who was the director of music, and to the Carmel Music Society for the use of their Steinway piano.

Among those participating in this annual event were: the Carmel Kiwanis Club, Carmel Host Lions Club, Carmel Rotary Club, various churches, Hector DeSmet Bakeries, the Monterey Baking Company, Wishart's Baking Company, Safeway Stores, Inc., Bruno's Market, Brownie Troop No. 2028, Carmel Unified School District, Carmel Middle School, Tularcitos School, Carmel River School, Briarcliff Academy, Security Pacific Bank, and local Boy and Girl Scout troops.

Correction

IN THE Dec. 3 issue of the Pine Cone it was incorrectly noted that Doris Fee donated the building for the Big Sur Grange Hall.

Fee, a 50-year resident of Big Sur, responded: "The Big Sur Grange Hall was not given by the donor of the land. It was built by the members of the Grange and friends, who donated their labor and efforts."

Fee donated the land on which the hall was built.

Ambitious swim-gym complex still in the works

By DAVID LELAND

SLOWLY BUT surely the Carmel Area Community Complex is looking more like a reality and less like a dream.

The ambitious $28 million complex — the idea was initiated by the Carmel Unified School District — would incorporate an aquatic center with a 60-by-120 foot indoor pool, therapy pool and spa as well as a 1,300-seat "gallery" area; a gymnasium which would seat 1,400; and a performing arts center which is forecast to house 2,000 seats, with added classrooms, rehearsal space, dressing rooms and a shop area.

Once completed, the complex — to be located just south of Carmel Middle School on CUSD property — would have 540- and 200-space parking lots, two full-sized baseball fields and four community tennis courts.

Sound like a mouthful? Well, nobody ever said progress was simple.

But the 11-member committee appears to be optimistic on getting results and recently divided up into two groups for a clearer focus.

Frohman Academy for the Performing Arts Executive Director Mikel Pippi is heading up the theater task force, while Dick Falge is spearheading the "swim-gym" complex.

Financing for the swim-gym alone is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $3.9 million for the aquatic center and $2.1 million for the gymnasium.

With that in mind, a non-profit organization has been formed to handle the funding.

With a non-profit organization it will be easier to keep track of which money goes where, according to Bob D'Isidoro, chairman of the committee.

Even though the project will be in conjunction with the CUSD, it is prudent to keep the CUSD budget and the new complex separate, D'Isidoro said.

He added that for a "nominal" fee, the complex would probably sign a 99-year lease with the CUSD for the 10 acres on the 60-acre parcel that the swim-gym will encompass.

What the non-profit organization really does, D'Isidoro said, is to put the community in charge of where the funds are going, with the assets belonging to the community at large.

"It's not uncommon for cultural and recreational projects to not be owned by an individual person or business," D'Isidoro said, citing Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula as an example, "but by a non-profit corporation."

•

CAUTIOUS WOULD probably be the best word to describe the deliberate movements of the committee, which still only has architectural plans showing a rough idea of what the completed project will look like.

"We're still in the planning stages, but we view this as something that won't come on line right away," D'Isidoro said, adding that the county currently has a moratorium on building permits until next April. "We're not running pell mell forward, nor are we discouraged."

What the committee is sure of, however, is the basic premise of the swim-gym — now it wants to know what the public thinks is a good idea.

With that thought in mind, early next year a sample survey will be conducted of selected residents in Pebble Beach, Big Sur, Carmel Valley and Carmel.

"The survey will determine the needs and desires of the community," said Falge. "We hope that it will generate ideas and the amount of financial support we can expect."

Falge said the survey will be conducted either by mail or in person and will also profile user groups on the peninsula.

CUSD Supt. Bob Infelise told The Pine Cone that the project will be phased in, with the swim-gym taking the first priority.

He added that he was in no way worried that Monterey is also planning a similar gym complex and that there is plenty of room for everyone.

"Each community can support a swim-gym complex," Infelise said. "There's 20,000 people in the CUSD which takes up 600 square miles. This isn't just for downtown Carmel."

•

MEANWHILE, THE theater task force is looking at a larger and more controversial plan, but it also appears optimistic.

"We're going full-steam ahead with plans to build a 2,000-seat facility," Pippi said.

Part of that "steam," however, includes practicalities such as: how will the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project affect the theater, with the primary access for the complex just off Rio Road?

Other problems include water and other environmental concerns in the Carmel Valley. The valley operates under the strict conditions of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, which dictates how much building can take place each year.

Also, if a project goes on line that increases traffic, pollution or density, all building in Carmel Valley could be shut down.

Last fall 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman told The Pine Cone that the Carmel Valley Master Plan may need to be revised in order to accommodate such a large project.

"We want to make sure it's a safe project," Pippi said. "We also believe it will serve residents of Carmel for years to come."

Pippi believes that the $20 million price tag for the theater is not "unusual" for a project of that size, with seats averaging about $10,000 each.

The only problem is that Monterey is also planning a theater project and most people feel that the peninsula cannot handle two such theaters.

"There can only be one such facility in the county," explains Pippi, adding that the Carmel Valley location is "unique" because the CUSD has already earmarked land and there are a lot of people already interested.

Pippi said he has also been meeting with Virginia Stanton and her group "Friends of the Performing Arts" in an effort to seek financial support.

The Friends recently abandoned supporting a theater in downtown Carmel, after public sentiment seemed too steep a hill to climb. Stanton has pledged $250,000 toward a performing arts center on the peninsula.

While the Frohman Academy would benefit directly from the theater in that it would move a step closer to its goal of a performing arts high school, Pippi said the project is too big for it to go alone.

Early next year Pippi said he will begin conducting meetings with other cultural commissions on the peninsula as well as various user groups in an effort to anticipate the level of interest and to sway support toward his project.

At any rate, like the swim-gym complex, the theater project is not something that will take place tomorrow.

"It could be two to five years to really get it together," Pippi said.

Free water conservation kits reach 80%-plus success rate

By NANCY HILLS

AFTER WHAT appears to be a successful pilot water conservation kit distribution program, the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board voted to spend about $600,000 to take the project districtwide.

John Chapman of DMC Energy, the firm that conducted the pilot program, told the water board that more than 80 percent of the test homes in Pacific Grove and Seaside that received the free water conservation kits had installed them. The pilot program cost about $51,865.

"That (percentage of participation) is quite high for this type of program," Chapman said.

Chapman informed the board during their Dec. 14 meeting that distribution to about 400 multi-family residences was still in progress.

The pilot program distributed 2,313 kits to homes in the Del Monte Park neighborhood of Pacific Grove and the Ord Terrace neighborhood of Seaside. It was to test the effectivness of reducing water consumption through a door-to-door water conservations kit giveaway to single- and multi-family residences.

The district estimates about 40,000 household will receive kits in the next phase.

The kit distribution program is one part of the district's campaign to reduce water consumption within its boundaries by 9 percent by the year 1990 and 15 percent by 2020.

A recently approved districtwide water conservation ordinance requires that businesses also install the kits or change their plumbing hardware, but are not receiving any of the equipment free or having it distributed to them.

The kit distribution program is a joint project of the water management district and Monterey Regional Water Pollution Control Agency, which hopes usage of the kits will reduce flows into its overburdened sewage treatment plants.

The water pollution control agency will pay about $230,380 of the approximately $650,000 the will program will cost.

The water management district contributes two-thirds of the monies because large sections of the distribution area are outside the pollution control agency's boundaries. The agencies split the cost of the areas they share.

The kits, which cost about $15 apiece, include two low-flow showerheads, faucet aerators and toilet dams that reduce water consumption by about one gallon per flush.

If used, they are estimated to save about 10 percent on interior home water consumption with a corresponding decrease in the water bill.

Chapman said DMC Energy distributed and conducted a follow-up on the installation of the 2,313 kits to single-family homes between Oct. 30 and Nov. 20.

Only 55 households flatly refused the kits, Chapman said. Notes were left for those they could not contact asking them to call the district.

Chapman said the follow-up door-to-door survey found 83 percent of the single family homes in the Del Monte Park area had installed the kit. At Seaside's Ord Terrace the rate was even higher, with about 86 percent installed.

Michael Ricker, water management district demand management coordinator, said there appeared to be about an 8 percent reduction in sewage flows in the Ord Terrace area already, but recent rains had confused the data.

Information from California-Amercian Water Co. would be forthcoming later, he added, since they compile their statistics for billing every two months.

KRML radio station makes bid for new FM frequency

By DAVID LELAND

WITH A little bit of luck, Carmel will be listening to the mellow sounds of jazz radio on the FM dial as well as on AM sometime next year.

After more than two years of research and development, KRML co-owner Alan Schultz reports that six months ago the Federal Communications Commission opened up 95.5 on the FM dial for a new station in Carmel.

"We were finally able to convince the FCC that Carmel needs an FM station," says Schultz, adding that an AM station reaches about 30 to 40 percent of the listening area's audience, while FM broadcasting fills in the rest.

Others wishing to apply for a license to operate the new station have until Feb. 11 to contact the FCC in Washington, D.C., but Schultz doesn't think that prospect is likely.

"This didn't just happen," explains Schultz, who conducted numerous and expensive marketing and engineering surveys to prepare for the licensing process. "We were the only ones to respond — it's been a waiting process."

KRML (1410 AM) has been providing service to the area in one form or another for the past 31 years, but it has only been since Schultz entered the picture three years ago that the Carmel station turned solely to jazz.

By expanding to an FM station, Schultz says the station will "increase our listenership and service to the community."

Schultz cites the finding of lost pets as a recent sampling of that service offered to the community.

"Whether it's Doris Day who lost her dog or the lady who recently lost her cat," he boasts. "Jazz is our business but the ancillary aspects of broadcasting are our concern."

Perhaps the biggest break in recognition for the Carmel Valley-based station came in 1971, when Clint Eastwood used the studios for a backdrop for the film Play Misty for Me.

The studio used today is identical to the one used in the successful motion picture, in which Eastwood plays a disc jockey pursued by a psychotic female listener.

But broadcasting on AM frequency presents its own set of problems, Schultz says, most of which concern the fidelity of the transmission.

•

ALL FM stations broadcast in stereo, which allows the station to "mix" each song to its own specifications. In other words, if the disc jockey wants the bass boosted and the treble lowered, he has that option.

But with KRML only coming over the airwaves in mono, music which sounds good in the station often has poor quality by the time it reaches the listener.

Another detriment of broadcasting in AM is the time restraints posed on the station. KRML only recently received permission from the FCC to broadcast from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Up until a couple of months ago it was forced to end its daily operations at sunset.

If all goes well and KRML receives its license to operate an FM station, the music will be broadcast 24 hours a day, says Schultz.

Schultz points out that the AM station will still exist, but he is not sure if it will "simulcast" with the FM station.

Some radio stations, such as KBLX in Berkeley, play the same music at the same time over both its FM and AM call letters.

In the beginning the FM broadcast will be delivered at the same strength and cover the same area (peninsula to Big Sur) as the current AM station, but Schultz hopes to have a larger antenna in operation when his budget allows.

THE CARMEL Foundation named the new senior citizens complex, which will be built on the site which now serves as a city-owned parking lot, after a couple who willed $1 million toward the project. Once completed in 1989, the building will be named "The Robert and Ruth Norton Center for Seniors." (Holly McFarland photo.)

New housing complex gets a name

By DAVID LELAND

THE LONG-AWAITED Carmel senior housing complex was baptized "The Robert and Ruth Norton Center for Seniors" last week, in a show of respect for the couple that willed $1 million toward the project in 1986.

To be located at Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street, across from the U.S. Post Office, now a dirt parking lot owned by the city, the 24-unit, low-income senior housing project is due to begin construction early next year.

"The Nortons' action will additionally have a lasting impact upon the quality and scope of the foundation's many programs for senior citizens of this area," said Carmel Foundation President Robert Priestley, whose foundation will fund the senior housing project.

Norton, a Carmel police chief from 1935 to 1939 and real estate investor, specified that the bequest was to be used for "the purpose of making improvements in existing buildings...or to purchase land or in constructing new buildings."

The will consisted of cash and securities in the approximate amount of $539,000 and real estate holdings in Pacific Grove and Carmel, according to Richard Nystrom, executor for the Norton Estate.

In October, the state Coastal Commission approved a building permit for the $1.2 million housing project, while the foundation signed a 50-year lease with the city.

In addition to the 20 studio apartments and four one-bedroom units, plans call for a $538,000 37-space underground parking garage, which the city will fund.

City officials plan to have the parking lot out to bid by February and under construction by late April.

Completion of the entire project is slated for April of 1989.

It is still unclear what the criteria will be for selecting renters from the 75-person waiting list, according to John Frietas, foundation director.

Once selected, however, the renters will be living in modest accomodations with the latest conveniences.

Amenities for the complex include a central lounge, centralized laundry/dryer facilities, spaces and ramps for handicapped and wheelchair residents, adjustable kitchen and other counter spaces, a central garden area and private outdoor patios.

Be a friend, then a host

WITH THE holiday part season in full swing, the California State Automobile Association (AAA) reminds party-givers to be "first a friend, then a host."

Drinking drivers are responsible for approximately half the people killed in California and Nevada traffic accidents, according to CSAA. In California, 2,543 persons were killed in alcohol-related accidents in 1986 out of a total of 5,222 traffic deaths. In Nevada, 120 persons died in drunk-driving accidents last year out of a total of 233 traffic fatalities.

CSAA offers the following tips to party hosts:

• Encourage your guests to organize car pools, with designated drivers, who agree to remain sober.

• Serve snacks throughout the evening because food helps slow the body's absorption of alcohol. But avoid preparing salty or spicy foods, which might make guests thirsty.

• Offer meat, cheese and other high-protein foods because they stay in the stomach longer.

• Serve plenty of non-alcoholic beverages.

• Urge guests to drink no more than a one-ounce alcoholic drink per hour. It takes the average person an hour to metabolize a drink.

• Be sure to use a one-ounce jigger (or smaller measure) when making drinks. Never pour double-size drinks or other larger sizes.

• Remember that you will get the same amount of alcohol in a 12-ounce can of beer, a 5-ounce glass of wine or a 1½-ounce serving of hard liquor.

• Don't rush to refill drinks.

• Divert attention away from the bar with dancing, games or conversation.

• Two hours before the party is scheduled to end, put away the alcoholic beverages. Continue to provide ample quantities of non-alcoholic drinks.

• Offer your guests a late snack to end the evening.

Quick cures won't help those who have overindulged, according to the CSAA. Taking a cold shower or drinking a lot of coffee after too much alcohol makes a person wide-awake, but still drunk, the CSAA emphasizes.

If guests do drink to much, the host can call organizations that offer free transporation to party-goers; pay for a taxi ride home; drive the guests home or let them spend the night.

If drinkers insist on driving, the party-giver can contact the local police department or, if highway travel is involved, the state highway patrol. The California Highway Patrol or the Nevada Highway Patrol can be reached by asking the operator for Zenith 12000, a toll-free number. It is helpful to have a description of the vehicle, including the color and license plate number.

POSTCARD WEEK BEGINS MONDAY

Next Monday is the opening day of postal card week on the Monterey Peninsula. City officials, the various chambers of commerce and all civic bodies are behind the movement to have the residents and visitors send out postal card views of the historic lankmarks, the romantic places and the scenic views of the peninsula.

The postal card week is to celebrate the 320th anniversary of the discovery of the Monterey Peninsula by Don Sebastian Viscaino. The Monterey Peninsula takes rank as one of the historic places in America in that it was discovered eighteen years before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock and five years before Jamestown was founded.

JAPANESE MADE GOODS REMOVED FROM STOCK

A delegation of Chinese from Monterey and San Francisco waited upon K.K. Lew, proprietor of the Chinese gift shop on Dolores street Tuesday afternoon, repeating a request which had been conveyed to Lew the day before that he remove all Japanese merchandise from his stock. The Japanese stock, consisting of comparatively few articles, was amicably removed by Lew, and he announced Wednesday that every article now in his stock is Chinese made.

FROM THE FAMOUS BABSON FORECAST FOR 1963
Going to the Moon

Nobody will reach the moon in 1963 or in 1964, but you will see more and more about it in the newspapers during 1964 — or 1965. Do not think that the United States will be the only country preparing for this trip. Russia, England, France, Germany, and possibly China are preparing today to go to the moon. With labor getting 15 cents for a twelve-hour day in China and with booster engines purchasable abroad, China may be the first to get to the moon. China does not need to be a member of the United Nations in order to send a rocket and three men to the moon and return. China's trip to the moon may be financed by foreigh capital.

One final thought: If the Kennedy Administration gets into much of a jam between taxes and inflation, the promotion of trips to the moon may pull them out of their troubles. By enticing private captial which is now in need of some attractive speculative investments, this might even bring about another big stock market boom in the late Sixties.

YEARLY 'BIRD COUNT' ON FOR BIRDWATCHERS

The annual Monterey Peninsula Bird Count will be a dawn-to-dark affair Tuesday, Dec. 27. The major bird-watching expedition usually locates several hundred different birds each year.

All interested birds — members or nonmembers of the Audubon Society — are welcome to participate, preferably for a half day or more. Birders need not be professionals. Persons will also be needed to tally.

Those who wish to participate must make arrangements in advance with compiler Bill Reese.

PROPERTY OWNERS TO FOOT BILL OF $100

Individual property owners who use water from a proposed Arroyo Seco River dam could pay up to $100 in the next five years to raise more than $8 million in seed money for the project, the Pine Cone/Outlook has learned.

Monterey County Treasurer Tom White figures property owners could be assessed up to $20 a year for the next five years to pay for architectural and structural studies for the estimated $150 million project.

The project has been proposed as one source of water for the future needs of the Monterey Peninsula, as well as for the Salinas Valley. Supervisors have authorized preliminary planning and financial studies on the proposal, and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District has agreed to participate in initial studies.

CSAA Provides Ski Reports

Details on ski conditions and weather information for the Sierra Nevada are available to winter sports fans who call the California State Automobile Association's ski phone (415) 864-6440.

During the CSAA ski phone's 31st year, the AAA-affiliated auto club is providing a daily recorded telephone summary of skiing and weather conditions throughout the ski season. The report service is available 24 hours a day, with an update each weekday morning by 10 a.m.

Reports indicate how much snow has fallen, total amount of snow on the ground, conditions of the skiing surface, the number of downhill lifts operating and the number of kilometers of cross-country set track open at ski resorts.

Ski areas include most major resorts within convenient driving range for ski fans in northern and central California and Nevada. The areas range from Lassen in the north to Mammoth in the southern Sierra, with particular emphasis on the resorts in and near the Tahoe basin.

Holiday stuff and nonsense

TODAY, AS a special kind of holiday treat, we'd like to review some investment theories that have less circulation than they deserve.

You may have heard of the "Hemline Indicator." This indicator presumes to tell the future direction of the market based on what happens to women's hemlines. During the '20s and '60s, when hemlines rose, so did the market. And during the '30s and '70s, when hemlines fell, so did the market.

You may not know that there is a corollary of this theory called the "Pants/Cuff Theory." If men wear cuffs on their pants, it means they are dedicated CD buyers. If they wear no cuffs, they probably are heavy players in the options market.

Next, you should know about a theory called the "Elliott Wave." This one is a tad difficult to fully grasp. But we'll give it a try.

According to the Elliott Wave Theory, if a certain Mrs. Elliott waves her hanky while standing at the back door of her Pebble Beach home, the market will respond by jumping frantically up and down for two weeks.

But Mrs. Elliott only does this on those occasions when someone named Prechter (or Rector) calls her with secret information from his charts and graphs.

Another old favorite is the "Wall Street Week Indicator." Most simply put, this theory depends totally on a close examination of Louis Rukeyser's long curly hair. If it appears that Lou has had a haircut during the past week, sell everything and put your cash into freeze-dried food and bombshelters. If, on the other hand, it appears that our amiable punster of a host has avoided a visit to his Wall Street barber, bet the house, move your savings into penny stocks and generally throw caution to the wind.

Last but not least is the famous "Super Bowl Indicator" made famous by that venerable market historian, Bob Stovall. Mr. Stovall studied the relationship of Super Bowl winners and the Dow Jones Average.

He noticed that each year a team from the National Football Conference (or the old NFL) won the Super Bowl, the Dow Jones would end the year at a higher level. Conversely, a Super Bowl Champ from the American Football Conference (or more accurately, the old AFL) would cause the market to be bearish for the balance of the year.

We two have updated Mr. Stovall's theory with what we call the "Pre-Game Show Indicator."

Our indicator is simplicity itself. If Jimmy the Greek chooses an NFC team to prevail in the Super Bowl, it means Al Davis is not talking to his stockbroker. However, if Jimmy picks an AFC team, it means he's been hitting the botle and you should load up on the distilling stocks.

If this information doesn't assist you in your battle with the Bull and the Bear, probably nothing will.

Happy Holidays!

Fire department conducting drive for food, toys

THE CARMEL Fire Department is conducting a drive to raise food and toys for needy families on the peninsula this Christmas.

The drive began Friday, Nov. 27 and will continue until Christmas Eve. The fire department will be accepting donations in the form of canned or non-perishable foods, workable toys, money or other appropriate gifts.

Donations can be dropped off daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Carmel Fire Station on Sixth Avenue between San Carlos and Mission.

Carmel Highlands Fire Department will deliver gifts

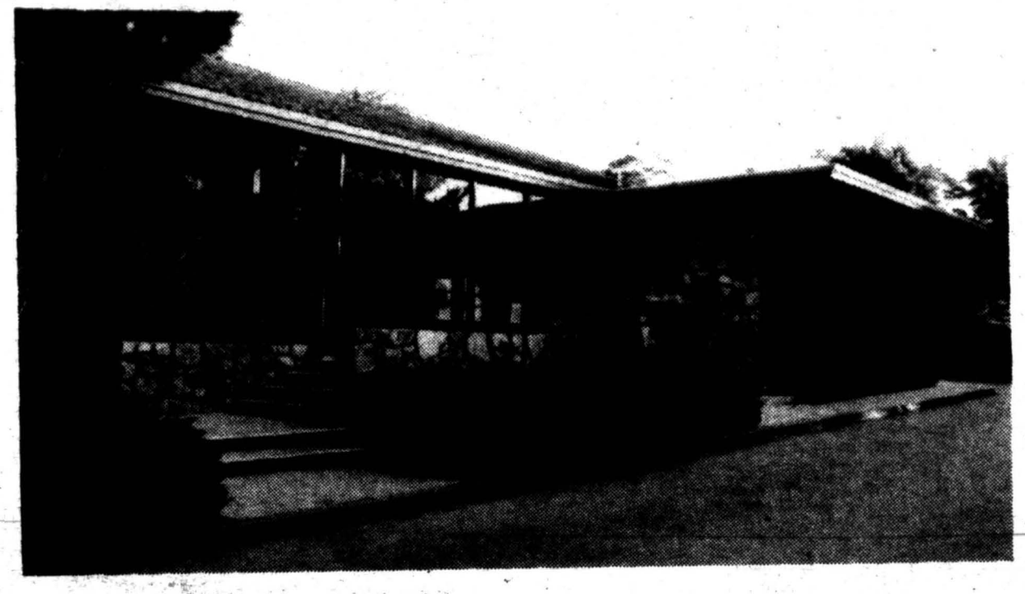
SANTA CLAUS will deliver Christmas presents to Carmel Highlands this year, but there's a catch, you have to live within the confines of the fire district.

That is, of course, according to the Carmel Highlands Fire Department, which has invited Santa to deliver gifts to residents of the district on Dec. 24.

If you would like a gift delivered to someone who lives in the district, bring the wrapped and marked gift to the fire station (73 Fern Canyon Road), between Dec. 15 and 23, and the gift will be delivered.

Help! We need a name!

The Trustees of the Harrison Memorial Library are asking for suggested names for the building being remodeled for library use at Sixth Avenue and Mission. Formerly the home of the Crocker Bank, the building will comprise a large children's library, administrative offices, a technical area for cataloguing and processing books, and a room devoted to documents and displays dealing with Carmel history. The building will open for use in the summer of 1988.



Suggestions for names may be placed in a box in the present library at Lincoln Street and Ocean and should be entered by New Year's Eve. There are no prizes, but the Trustees and the staff will be grateful for your help.

My suggestion for the name of the remodeled library building at Sixth and Mission is:

NAME (Optional) _____

ADDRESS _____

CITY _____ ZIP _____

Please leave your suggested name in the box at the circulation desk at the Harrison Memorial Library by New Year's Eve. The Library Board of Trustees will select the name of the remodeled building. There are no prizes, but the Trustees and the staff are grateful for your help.

Trees on private property are in losing battle

By DAVID LELAND

EACH YEAR visitors flock to Carmel to bask in the forest-like atmosphere which offsets the sparkling blue Carmel Bay. Perhaps nowhere else in the world are trees protected with such ferocity than in this one-mile square area.

But this image could change if a trend continues among private residents to let the city maintain its forest, while they do other things with their property, such as expanding homes or simply ignoring the trees on their property that are growing old and dying.

This is a proposition that has Forest Commissioner Roy Thomas perplexed and worried.

"Without trees we will look like New Monterey or Seaside," says Thomas, who adds that a recent aerial survey conducted by the city shows an increasing amount of bare spots outside of public areas.

"The young trees — Monterey Pine and cypress — don't exist in the tree survey on private property," explains Thomas. "It's a conflict of what this town represents and what it will turn into."

Statistics support Thomas' thesis, with the private number of trees diminishing greatly during the last 14 years.

In the city-conducted survey, trees are grouped according to diameter, with the significance being a drop in the number of smaller trees which could replace the dying ones.

In 1973, pine trees with a diameter of 1 to 24 inches on private property totalled 590, with the city's trees in that dimension totalling 615.

But in a 1987 survey those numbers had changed dramatically, with the private trees in the same diameter now only amounting to 404, while the public number of trees rose to 668.

During that same time period cypress trees with those dimensions dropped also. On private property during those 14 years the number dropped from 227 to 52.

Many people think that large trees live forever, explains Thomas, but that simply is not true.

He points out that by looking at the treeline in Carmel it is easy to spot trees that have quit growing by their flat tops.

Besides the people who live here who simply don't like trees, Thomas says there is a more serious problem growing in Carmel.

Thomas points out that part of the trend is that once a longtime resident moves, the responsibility for reforesting falls upon the new owner — who often is unaware of this task.

Christmas gala at Stonepine

PLACE ELEGANT ladies in the latest French poofs and strapless dresses, their escorts in black tie, give them champagne, line the stairway with the Victory Temple Choir from Seaside, and it is reassuring to know that Chateau Noel at Stonepine is solidly built. The upbeat rocking rhythms filled the reception rooms and all the hearts with joy.

Just as spirits soared above the stately pine trees and prepared to zoom to a higher universe, guests were brought to reality by "Scrooge" announcing, "Dinner is served." Violin and cello music wafted out of the candlelit dining room and to the delight of the 50 guests, Scrooge (Valentine Fine) continued to grudgingly announce each luscious holiday dish as it was served.

As dinner ended, the music of the Kenny Stahl Band beckoned holiday celebrants to the dance floor in the next room. Cheese and fruit were placed in the adjoining foyer. As the music ended at midnight many of the guests had no farther to go than a Stonepine suite.

Accepting the invitation to an exquisite, formal Christmas Gala with Vel and Joe Garrihy were: Liza Atkins, Jenefee and Tom Bruce, Peggy Compton, Debbie and Lori DiGrazia, Charlene and "Doc" Etienne, Sue Hutchinson, Arlen Lackey and Cindy Hinkle, Karen and Denny LeVett, Jacqueline and Terry Melchoir, Geoffrey Etienne, Barbara and Dick Stephens, Ted Stevens, Laura and Bill Stahl, Joan and David Sailer, Margaret and Gary Tate. Pastor of Victory Temple W. Wyatt Hamilton (who was recently appointed bishop), came with his wife.

All of this elegance at $300 per couple had a serious purpose. To fund an educational program to prevent suicides in the young.

IT'S A tradition. It's a party that many would never think of missing. It's the Monterey County Symphony Guild Dickens Ball that comes around every December. It's a reward for spending the year thinking up ideas to raise funds for the Monterey County Symphony and that accounts for the carefree atmosphere that always prevails. Just a bunch of volunteers out for a good ole evening of holiday fun.

Maestro Clark Suttle created quiet a stir by shaving off his beard (a fixture for 16 years). He could offer no specific reason. He just did it.

More than 100 ladies and gentlemen sipped, dined and danced to the music of the Richard LaSalle Group by the crackling fireplace in the great hall of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

IN THE Christmas spirit, soprano Marnie Shooter (accompanied by Patricia Moffat) shared her talent with 60 guests when she presented a concert at La Mirada to benefit the docent program there.

Her music included Handel, Gounod, Bach, John Jacob Niles, Leroy Anderson and ended with The Christmas Song by Mel Torme. Perfect selections to enjoy at this time of year.

A HOLIDAY tree decorated with shells and red bows was the first greeting for guests as they entered the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History Saturday evening as they came to the Christmas party and art opening. The tree was the handiwork of Dorothy Capen, Gertrude Chappell, Sheryl Finnegan, Veve Fitzgerald, Joyce Fletcher, Helen Lind, and Nadine Merlo. Greenery and giant pine cones and holiday decorations brightened the gift shop and buffet tables.

Appetizers for the buffet tables were brought by association members John Waldron, Jo Owens, and Joyce, Nadine, Veva and Sheryl. Punch and wine were dispensed at the Gift Shop window by Paul Finnegan, association curator.

opened. It seems fitting to tell the story of these American prehistoric people who were ancestors to the modern-day Pueblo Indians. It proves we have history going back 6,000 to 11,000 B.C.

The Anasazi built the cliff dwellings and great pueblos that stretched from the Grand Canyon to the Great Plains and from central New Mexico to southern Colorado. They were master craftsmen. Baskets, cotton textiles, stone and shell jewelry and pottery diversely shaped and decorated. The show is on view through Jan. 17.

ENTRE NOUS

HOLIDAY TIME was storytime at the Carmel Valley Library with Shelley Cullin (professional storyteller) entertaining children with Channukah and Christmas stories. Then, Shelley went to the Salvation Army Senior Daycare Center and did some readings for them...The Community Hospital Auxiliary cheered patients with a variety of decorated trees: an angel tree, a doll tree, nutcracker tree, Oriental theme, birds on one, crystal and ribbons on another, an old-fashioned popcorn and apple tree. Adolescent patients in the Clint Eastwood Youth Program had the fun of decorating their own tree. Bringing vocal cheer were the Robert Down School Children's Choir, Sister Chris Eaton and guitar, Carolers Unlimited and Carmel Caroling Company...The Carmel Valley Rancher's Day presented $6,000 to various local charities — Hospice, Special Olympics, Carmel Valley Community Center and Ventana Wilderness. The awards presentations followed a dinner at the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club...In the tradition of helping others (especially children), the third March of Dimes Gourmet Gala is set for Jan. 16. Tickets, at $150 per person for this golden year event are going fast. The cause is to prevent birth defects and ensure healthier lives for America's children. Allen Funt will be master of the ceremonies and will be joined by many celebrity chefs. We know the 1988 social season has begun when we talk about the Gourmet Gala...While you are in a giving spirit it is a good time to volunteer to answer the Rape Crisis 24-hour

PROPHECY CORNER

By Phil Lunsford

In previous articles I explained that in the near future there would be the rapture (catching away) of the church. After the rapture of the church, there will be a one-day nuclear war. The one-world ruler (antichrist) will come into power.

At first he will be a man of peace and will protect the nation of Israel from hostile nations, but will turn his back on Israel and the rest of the world and become a ruthless ruler. He will require people to receive the mark "666" in order to buy and sell. During this time there will be 21 plagues from God, because most people will choose to follow the anti-christ, instead of God. The anti-christ will ultimately fight the war of Armageddon with Jesus Christ who will return to rule the world with true peace.

The primary concern of people today who believe that this seven-year period is coming, is how can anyone avoid it? In 1 Thessalonians 4:13:18, 11 Thessalonians 2:1-12 and Revelation 3:7-13, the Bible tells that Jesus will remove His true body of believers from the world while these things take place on earth.

The all-important question is, who is Christ's true body of believers? The Bible teaches in Romans 10:9-13 that whoever repents of sin and calls upon the name of the Lord and will follow Him all of their life, will be saved. Those who have done this is Christ's true body of believers.

Those who aren't raptured and live into this terrible time of judgment, can still accept Christ as their savior and be saved from God's ultimate wrath, which will be the destruction of the anti-christ and and eternity in hell.

Those who accept Christ as their savior during this time will be slain for their faith, but will immediately go to be with God in Heaven. This is found in Revelation 7:9-17 and Revelation 14:1-13.

My plea with people who read these articles and feel a conviction, is that they try to find the faith to accept Christ now, so they won't have to experience the terrible days, which I feel can begin to happen any day. You can contact me at P.O. Box 3504 Carmel, Ca. 93921.

YOU COULD GET A SIX-FIGURE RETURN ON A $16,920 INVESTMENT.

These days, getting any return at all on an investment is nothing short of miraculous. A fact which makes investing in a Volvo 240 all the more attractive.

You see, Volvos last a long time. How long, we can't guarantee. But it's not uncommon to see our cars driving around with hundreds of thousands of miles on them. And we know of at least one Volvo, still on the road, that recently topped the million mile mark.

So in these turbulent times, if you're about to invest thousands of dollars in a new car, keep one thing in mind: when the going gets tough, Volvos keep going.

GRANTS HELP PROGRAMS AT MPC

The National Pro-Am Youth Fund came to the aid of Monterey Peninsula College to the tune of almost $10,000.

In memory of Dan Searle, a gift of $3,500 was given to the MPC Golf program for travel and equipment expenses.

The National Pro-Am Youth Fund also granted $6,031 to assist the Supportive Disabled Students' program at MPC. Both gifts were officially acknowledged with profound gratitude by the MPC Governing Board at their recent board meeting.

CHRISTMAS SHARING EVENT SET FOR DEC. 22

Patricia A. Qualls and Betsy G. Thomson of Thomson & Qualls Financial Group invite the public to their "Christmas Sharing" on Tuesday, Dec. 22, from 4 to 7 p.m. This annual event is held in their offices at 3855 Via Nona Marie, Suite 103, Carmel.

This year you can be one of Santa's helpers by filling baskets for the needy living in Monterey Peninsula convalescent hospitals. We will be distributing gift baskets that clients and friends have graciously filled for those who are less fortunate. Bring your donations and join in making baskets of Christmas cheer.

Gift ideas: books, puzzles, warm hats, lipstick and other cosmetic items, room decorations, kneesocks, photo albums, picture frames. Those who cannot attend, but would like to donate, may drop any gift items at the office listed above.

Tiny dancers

LED BY a team of parent volunteers, the Briarcliff Academy has expanded its dance program to include a performing dance company. So far 58 students from kindergarten through eighth-grade have been accepted into the program. There are three different performance levels: apprentice, corp de ballet and soloist. Director is internationally known dance instructor Patsy Wester, with instructors Sandi Ellis and Nancy Callaway. The board of the company is chaired by Frank Pierce. The dance company is eager to perform for community groups, schools and civic organizations. For more information call Susi Wagstaff at 625-0676 or Briarcliff Academy at 624-4815.

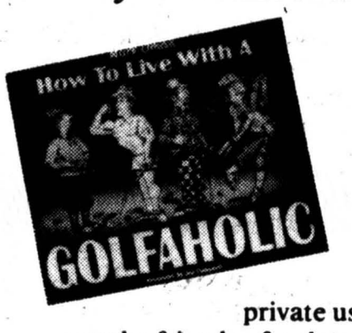
HOW TO LIVE WITH A GOLFAHOLIC

By Carmel Author Mark Oman



WARNING!

The following excerpt from the new book HOW TO LIVE WITH A GOLFAHOLIC is intended solely for the private use of those who suspect they may be friends of, related to, or — heaven forbid — married to a golfaholic. In the weeks ahead you'll learn the whole sordid story; how to survive the "traps and hazards" of life with a golf lover.

"After we were married, it was 36 holes on Saturday and 36 holes on Sunday. I finally put my foot down and insisted that if he played golf on Saturday, he had to spend time with the family on Sunday.

"He agreed. Now on Sunday the 3 year old and I walk around the course with him.

"Lately his handicap in bed has been going up faster than at the course.

"When I told him that, he said he really does want to have another child. But he's got to get his clubs reshafted first.

"When I suggested maybe it was time he saw a sex therapist, he agreed, but wanted to know the doctor's handicap first."

More case histories

CASE HISTORY NO. 09600002
Cleveland, Ohio

"It all started on our wedding day. He was 10 minutes late to the ceremony because he felt he should probably take a shower after playing 36 holes of golf.

CASE HISTORY NO. 00000001
Fargo, North Dakota

"My boss has a golfing problem. He says his wife, Ethel, doesn't understand him — which is not surprising since her name is Gertrude. His putter is Ethel.

"He says they are both impossible to live with, except Gertrude doesn't miss from two feet. Which is why he hangs on to Ethel who at least doesn't hit back.

"He's played for five years to get good enough to be called a duffer.

"In the three years I've worked for him, I've listened to exactly 4,629 excuses for his lousy shots. Tomorrow I'll hear a 105 or 110 more — if he's had a good day.

"Every other week he swears he's going to give up the game, then says as long as he's going to quit, he might as well get in one more round.

"Last Christmas I almost made a terrible mistake. I bought him one of those gadgets to find the sweetspot on his balls.

"The next day he begged me to marry him. So did his wife."

OBITUARIES

Merritt D. Cutler

Merritt Dana Cutler of Carmel Valley, an artist, author and amateur tennis player, died Dec. 4 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 89.

Born Feb. 22, 1898 in Harlem, New York, he was a resident of Rowayton, Conn. for more than 40 years. He visited the peninsula during the winter and had been a Carmel Valley resident for the past three years.

He studied art at the Pratt Institute and did postgraduate work at the Art Students League, both in New York.

He was an avid tennis player, competing in U.S. national tournaments and at Wimbledon in England. He won the U.S. National Indoor Doubles Championship in 1930.

He was an Army veteran of World War I and World War II, winning the Distinguished Service Cross, Croix de Guerre, British Military Medal and the Purple Heart.

In addition to paintings, he worked in graphic arts and authored several art technique books. He also wrote and illustrated a tennis instructional book. Some of his paintings are on permanent display at the New Britain, Conn. Museum of Art.

Survivors include two nephews, Edward Cutler of Pebble Beach and Stuart Cutler of Dallas, Texas.

No services took place.

Adrienne B. Engle

Private cremation took place under the direction of the Paul Mortuary, for Adrienne Bancker Engle of Carmel Valley, who died Nov. 28 at her home. She was 82.

Born July 20, 1905 in Brooklyn, N.Y., she had been a Monterey County resident for 37 years and a Carmel Valley resident for the past 12 years.

She was a graduate of Smith College and studied acting and stage-set designs at the Hedgerow Theater in Pennsylvania and at the Pasadena Playhouse.

She was a member of the Rancho Canada Women's Golf Club board and a member of the Monterey Bay Aquarium, the Cousteau Society, the Sierra Club and other conservation groups.

Survivers include a daughter, Karen of Maui, Hawaii; a son Christopher of Carmel Valley; four grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Her husband, Peter, died in 1973. Another daughter, Joan Snow, died in 1981.

Funeral services will be scheduled for a later date.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Theta J. Logan

A memorial took place Dec. 4 at Pacific View Memorial Park in Corona Del Mar, for Theta J. Logan, formerly of Carmel Valley, who died Nov. 27 in a Newport Beach hospital. She was 79.

Born Nov. 8, 1908 in Gage, Okla., she operated child-care centers in Newport Beach before she retired and moved to Carmel Valley, where she lived for eight years. She moved to Corona Del Mar about two years ago.

Survivors include two sons, Locksin Thompson of Carmel Valley and Eugene Logan of Santa Ana; two daughters, Patricia Smith of Costa Mesa and Sheri Donahue of Anacortes, Wash.; nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Water rights hearing delayed

timeline is highly speculative," he said.

The delay, Johnson said, is typical of large projects.

"On very highly developed projects there are many complications," he added. "I consider it (the district's delay), somewhat the norm."

The district has not officially rescheduled the hearing, but Johnson said that it would be no problem as long as the district decides when it would be ready about six months in advance.

As long as an applicant is showing progress on the project and a "good faith" effort to complete the process, the state board will not drop the application, Johnson said. He added that from what he understood, the district is in good standing. Three or four years is not a long time to have an application pending, he said.

Before the water district board requests a hearing date, it must choose its approach to comments on the EIR, which also serves as the federal environmental impact statement (EIS).

The water board still has to decide if it is going to address the questions about the project in a final EIR/EIS, resubmit another draft or a complete a revised draft. The board is scheduled to discuss that at a Jan. 26 workshop.

The Environmental Protection Agency has "strongly suggested" that the district redo the draft EIS because of it feels the section about alternatives to the dam as a water supply project is severely deficient. As a federal agency, the EPA makes its comments about the EIS.

The EPA would also like a much more detailed account of how the district plans to balance — or mitigate — some of the dam's environmental repercussions; a greater analysis of air pollution resulting from the growth the dam would allow; and challenges the district's assertion that the project will enhance the environment by permitting more larger flows year-round.

The EPA's comments were echoed by many of the state and federal fish and wildlife agencies and other environmental groups.

•

THE EPA'S comments are all a part of the process, Heuer said, though that's "not an easy thing to get across."

Most comments, from both government groups and individuals, have been made "in a very useful way," he added.

"This is the purpose of the process. It's set up to force you to develop the best possible project, not just a conduct a pro forma review," Heuer said.

The "natural tendency" is to shape the EIR to fit a predetermined project, he said.

It is impossible to predict when all the work will be completed.

"We don't know what's going to turn up in the end. It may still be worse," Heuer said.

"It does try one's patience," he added.

How long it will take to revise the EIR/EIS, is still unknown, Heuer said.

The district is developing a scope of work for Bechtel Engineering, the firm that will write and research the engineering portion of the EIR/EIS. Bechtel's contract may have to include an in-depth analysis of a project on San Clemente Creek, off the main river channel.

Smoke detectors make good gifts

Give a gift that protects your friends or loved ones — smoke detectors that are available gift wrapped for $9.55 including tax.

The smoke detector comes complete with a 9-volt battery and fire safety information.

Stocking stuffers are also available at the fire station — if you have a smoke detector, chances are that it needs, or will need soon, a new 9-volt battery. These are avaiable free to Mid Valley residents with smoke detectors and for $1.50 for others.

The Mid Carmel Balley Fire District's "Wake Up and Escape" smoke detector and battery replacement programs are non-profit public education programs and are funded through donated funds.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Time for a faith lift?

From the Dec. 21, 1978 Carmel Pine Cone/ Carmel Valley Outlook

O Lord, give us the grace and wisdom to see through the Christmas trimmings and understand that the true message of Christmas is peace on earth to men of good will.

St. John the Baptist told the ancient world, waiting anxiously for the Messiah, to get off the dime, to "shape up," to "clean up their act," to get their thing together. This message is still valid. We all play the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde game. We are angels of good will, "jolly-kind-fellows-well-met" in public and we are miserable Scrooges at home.

O Lord, help us to be kind, thoughtful and considerate to all those dwelling under our roof and help us to begin doing that today.

If your families die of shock it will a happy death.

Finally, here is some advice from Dr. Farrell, plastic surgeon. "If Christmas times causes us to get all wrinkled up with worry and care, it may be just the time to get a faith lift."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

"There is legitimate cause for concern about television's image of growing old and being old," say authors Richard and James Davis in their book "TV's Image of The Elderly." The authors charge that older characters are often pictured as more foolish, stubborn, comical or eccentric than other characters; that there are fewer senior citizen characters than their percentage of the population in real life; that older women are often stereotyped in roles which have them denying their age and trying desperately to stay young. The authors say children are likely to believe the TV caricatures, which could seriously affect their relationships with the elderly.

The world population of people over the age of 60 was 376 million in 1980. Just 40 years from now, experts predict, that figure will have climbed to more than a billion.

Ex-newspaperman publishes Jazz Age memoir

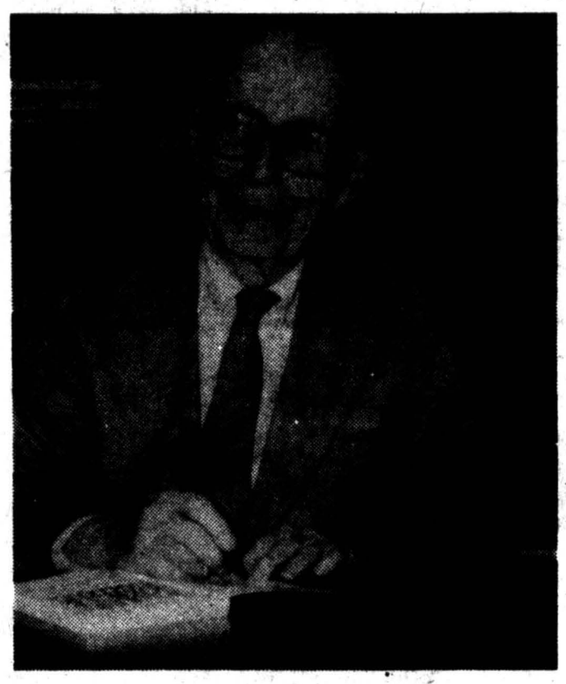
By ANNE PAPINEAU

SO PRODIGIOUS is Robert L. Hutchison's memory that as a reporter for the Joplin Globe and News Herald, he was able to accurately cover a speech without writing down quotes.

"I received some nice letters from speakers, so I guess I quoted them accurately," recalls Hutchison, who at 85 has just tapped into his memory files to compose a softcover book, Deadlines, Doxies and Demagogues.

Hutchison is a Missouri native, and although he was to assume journalistic duties in several major American cities, his book reveals a lingering affection for Joplin and his reporting years that happened to coincide with Prohibition and the Great Depression.

"I worked in a period when the newspaper was not only the primary source of information, but really the only source. Radio was in its infancy and television was many years away," he notes.



ROBERT L. Hutchison, bridge player and ex-newspaperman, has committed some of his journalistic memories to print in the new book, Deadlines, Doxies and Demagogues. The book features cover art by Eldon Dedini and a wealth of memories coined during Prohibition and the Great Depression.

Bored with his post-college jobs and inspired by a friend who found work as a sportswriter, Hutchison fished for a job on the Joplin Globe and News Herald. The year was 1926, and after a one-week trial without pay, he secured a post at $12.50 per week. His book reflects the enthusiasm that Hutchison maintained for his career choice.

Deadlines, Doxies and Demagogues is published by Carmel-based Packard Editions. Its namesa ke characters — a reporter, flapper and tycoon, are colorfully depicted on its cover by Carmel artist Eldon Dedini.

Relying on his newspaperman's instinct for grabbing readers' attention and holding it, Hutchison retells his memories of the local and international celebrities who made news in Joplin. The community, he recalls, "has outlived its one-time notoriety as a wide open playground for hard rock miners. It wasn't easy."

During one of Hutchison's first reporting assignments, the author was castigated by his managing editor for "burying the lead in the fourth paragraph." He did not repeat his mistake, and Deadlines, Doxies and Demagogues is put forth in spritely journalese.

"I devised this format. Some anecdotes didn't exactly fit in a chapter, which gave me a chance to write short, punchy stories," he reveals. "I would take three anecdotes, rate them one, two and three under a specific subject. I would make the best anecdote the kicker. I made the second best the lead-in story. The third is in the body of the chapter."

Working at his typewriter, Hutchison discovered he possessed not merely a sprinkling of golden memories, but a bonanza. The author had to ration his inventory to maintain the breezy format he envisioned.

"I wanted a fairly short, readable book with the emphasis on humor," he relates.

Hutchison's sharp memory recreates times of questionable liquor quality, celebrities treading the boards of the New Joplin Theater and politicos making a variety of impressions.

He writes of a tipsy Ethel Barrymore, an imperious Paul Whiteman and a truly sage Will Rogers.

"Will Rogers was always so amusing, so entertaining," he observes.

Inspiration for the book came from H. Lang Rogers, executive editor of the Joplin Globe, whom Hutchison had worked with when Rogers was a cub reporter. Rogers wrote to him, Hutchison returned a letter alive with anecdotes, and that proved the seed for his book. The author, who made his home in Carmel for several years and now resides in Pebble Beach, returned to Joplin to double-check his memory against the newspaper archives.

"I spent a year with my son and his family in Knoxville, Tenn. I really put the book together there."

Hutchison's career life was to take him around the United States. His other newspaper posts included state capital correspondent for the St. Louis Star-Times; editorial duties and feature writing for the Chicago Sun, Louisville Courier-Journal, Baltimore News American and Las Vegas Valley Times.

He also worked in government service, fund-raising assignments and association management. But Hutchison retains a certain fondness for journalism.

"None of us had any money to speak of. The newspaper business certainly wasn't rewarding financially. It was the work I wanted to do, and I'm still most comfortable around newspaper people. During my years in promotion and advertising I always made it a point to visit the newsroom. There is a camaraderie among newspaper people that transcends job status," Hutchison states.

Many are the stories that Hutchison was unable to include in his book. He recalls that one of his easiest interviews was talking to the chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railroad. Ensconced in a private railroad car, reporter and "demagogue" chatted for two hours.

Less successful was Hutchison's attempt at securing an interview with aviatrix Amelia Earhart.

"One of my high school chums worked for a Boston advertising agency and he was assigned to go to Paris and handle press relations for Earhart's solo flight across the Atlantic," recalls Hutchison with crystal clarity.

"She was on a speaking tour and I went to Pittsburgh to cover her speech and hopefully get an interview. I was told she was resting. I waited and waited in the hotel lobby, and after about five hours she got off the elevator with her entourage. I muscled my way in and said, 'Miss Earhart, I learned of your Paris experience from a friend of mine who was part of your team.' She said she'd never heard of him and pushed past me. But later she was an excellent speaker."

•

FOLLOWING IS a Hutchison anecdote that could not be included in his new book.

I HAD some vague knowledge of Carmel-by-the-Sea as an artists' colony and as a coastal vacation spot. And, like untold numbers of scandal connoisseurs, I associated the village with a nationally publicized episode wherein a Hollywood evangelist disappeared during an extra-marital affair.

When Aimee Semple McPherson brought her revival troupe to Joplin, I was assigned to interview the former pastor of the Four Square Gospel Tabernacle and was received in her hotel suite.

ROBERT L. HUTCHISON

Top-flight competitors sign for Spalding International Pro-Am

DAN POHL, 1987 Vardon Trophy winner, and Keith Clearwater, 1987 PGA tour Rookie-of-the-Year, head a list of nine players added to the $250,000 Spalding Invitational Pro-Am golf tournament by Tournament Director Harold Firstman.

Pohl and Clearwater will be joined by Mike Reid, Mark Calcavecchia, Steve Pate, J.C. Snead, Sam Randolph, Doug Tewell and John Inman, all winners on the 1987 tour.

Firstman previously had announced confirmed entries from defending champion, Ken Green, Al Geiberger, Greg Norman, Craig Stadler and Johnny Miller of the PGA Tour, as well as Jan Stephenson, Jody Rosenthal, Chris Johnson, Cindy Rarick, Amy Alcott and Val Skinner of the LPGA Tour.

Pohl, who earned $465,269 this year to finish 17th on the PGA money list, captured the Vardon Trophy with a scoring average of 70.27. He was third in the PGA Tour Epson stats for scoring with a 70.25 mark, tied for fourth in the greens hit in regulation category, tied for second in par breakers, and was number one in the all-around category.

Clearwater, who won two tournaments, the Colonial National and the Centel Classic, banked $320,007 in 35 events to set a new rookie tour record for single season winnings, topping the old mark of $260,536 set by Corey Pavin in 1984. He tied for second in the Epson stats in the number of birdies with 404.

Calcavecchia, who was 10th in earnings with $522,398, won the Honda Classic and was first among par breakers with a .221 mark. Pohl tied for second at .216.

Mike Reid won a million dollars in 11 years on the PGA Tour, but never a tournament until he walked off with the Tucson Open this year. Winner of $365,334, Reid was second to Calvin Peete in driving accuracy with an .804 average, and tied for fourth in greens hit with a .713 mark.

Pate enjoyed his best season in three years on the tour, winning $335,728 and finishing 26th on the money ladder.

The field of 90 professionals and 270 amateurs will compete over the Carmel Valley Ranch, Pebble Beach and Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club (Quail Lodge) courses, switching courses and amateur partners each day. The final round will be played at Carmel Valley Ranch.

Final two days of the tournament will be televised by ESPN, Jan. 9 and 10.

Price of advance season tickets is $40. Tickets are on sale through the Spalding Pro-Am office at 484-2151 or by writing the Spalding Pro-Am, Box M, Carmel, CA 93921. The Monterey Kiwanis Club, which provides marshals, starters, ticket sellers and other tournament officials, is the official charity of the tournament and will benefit for its youth-oriented programs.

Spalding fans also may take advantage of special reduced rates offered by many of the Monterey area hotels and motels through the efforts of the tournament committee. For information, contact the Spalding Pro-Am office.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

BROADCAST NEWS: An inside look at the broadcast news business was directed by James Brooks (Terms of Endearment) and stars William Hurt, Albert Brooks and Holly Hunter involved in a romantic newsroom triangle. Rated R. Opens Dec. 25 at the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

CINDERELLA: The Walt Disney animated classic about a dashing prince and a servant girl who steals his heart returns to the big screen. Rated G. At the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

CROSS MY HEART: Martin Short and Annette O'Toole co-star as tentative lovers on a shaky third date in this comedy about love and relationships '80s style. Rated R. At The Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

EMPIRE OF THE SUN: Steven Spielberg directed this coming-of-age adventure tale of a young boy (Christian Bale) who gets separated from his parents during the Japanese occupation of Shanghai during WWII and becomes a prisoner of war. Co-stars John Malkovitch as a canny and resourceful American seaman who befriends the boy. From the novel by J.G. Ballard. Opens Dec. 25 at the Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

FATAL ATTRACTION: Michael Douglas, Glenn Close and Anne Archer star in this thriller directed by British filmmaker Adrian Lyne (Flashdance). Douglas stars as a happily married New York attorney who has an affair with Close, a publishing executive. Douglas views the affair as a diversion, for Close it becomes a pathological obsession; their lives become a living nightmare. Rated R. At The Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

LEONARD PART 6: Bill Cosby stars as retired secret agent Leonard Parker, who is now in the restaurant business, but is called back into action to save the world from all manner of animal life gone berserk. Rated PG. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

OVERBOARD: Goldie Hawn stars as a pampered and bored heiress who falls off her yacht and suffers temporary amnesia. Kurt Russell stars as the poor slob who "rescues" her. Also stars Roddy McDowall, Edward Herrmann, and Katherine Helmond. Directed by Garry Marshall. Rated PG. Opens Dec. 18 at Lighthouse Cinemas. 372-7300.

ROCKY HORROR PICTURE SHOW: A send-up of remembered monster movies, with the added twist of music — "The Time Warp," "Over at the Frankenstein Place," and an audience that seems to know the lines better than the actors. A long-standing cult classic. Rated R. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

THE RUNNING MAN: Arnold Schwarzenegger stars in this futuristic thriller about a life-and-death game show (hosted by none other than Richard Dawson of Family Feud) in which contestants are pitted in a "game" that almost always ends in their death. Schwarzenegger plays the title character. Also stars Yaphet Kotto and Maria Conchita Alonzo. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

SIGN O' THE TIMES: The Antwerp and Brussells, Belgium shows by rock star Prince are captured in this live concert film featuring music from the similarly titled album. Directed by Prince. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

SUSPECT: Cher and Dennis Quaid star as an attorney and a juror in a murder trial who not only get involved with each other in an illegal liaison, but may have information that could reveal the real killer in this romantic thriller. Rated R. At the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

WALL STREET: Michael Douglas stars as a ruthless Wall Street corporate raider who takes a young charge (Charlie Sheen) under his wing, exposing him to a treacherous and corrupt side of high finance. Also stars Martin Sheen as Sheen's father and Darryl Hannah as the love interest. Directed by Oliver Stone (Platoon). Rated R. At the State Theater. 372-4555.

THE WHALES OF AUGUST: Lillian Gish and Bette Davis star in this tale of two quarreling sisters who live in a cottage on the coast of Maine. Co-stars Vincent Price, Ann Sothern and Harry Carey Jr. Directed by Britain's Lindsay Anderson. Opens Dec. 25 at the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

WISH YOU WERE HERE: Emily Lloyd plays a sexually precocious and impertinent adolescent coming of age in a small, dreary seaside English village where her every move is seen and frowned upon by the locals in this British comedy. She's lonely, but rarely alone and is in full command of her female prowess, which she uses to great advantage. Rated R. Opens Dec. 11 at the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

'The Whales of August'

Water rights hearing delayed

Former director John Williams feels the eight-month projected delay is optimistic.

Williams, an environmentalist who declined to run again in the November election, had warned the board repeatedly that environmental government agencies would be critical of the EIR/EIS and demand a more in-depth analysis of alternatives.

Eight months is still an "unrealistically short" period of time to get the document ready, Williams said. "Patching it up" will not work, he added.

Williams believes that it will take at least 18 months to do the work that will satisfy the EPA.

Some of the agency's complaints could "undo the whole screening process" the district used to eliminate alternatives to the main stem dam.

He added that "my sense is that if the district goes now and takes a careful look at the San Clemente Creek project, the EPA might slack off a bit."

The EPA, he said, is demonstrating what "hoops" it can put the district through and "the district will jump through the hoops that are the most attractive."

KATHY GOLDEN painted Snowy Egret, part of the "Avian Art in Watercolor" show at the Elkhorn Slough National Estuarine Research Reserve Visitor Center.

Watercolors depict wild birds of Elkhorn Slough

Watercolors by Bay Area artists Kathy Golden and Deborah Cotter will be featured at the Elkhorn Slough National Estuarine Research Reserve Visitors Center through Feb. 6.

The exhibit, entitled "Avian Art in Watercolor," is an appropriate subject for the Elkhorn Slough Reserve which is one of the few relatively undisturbed coastal wetlands remaining in California. The paintings will include many of the more than 2000 species of birds that have been observed in the slough.

The exhibition features realistic renderings of the subjects by use of delicate brushwork and subtle, natural coloration. With extreme detail and accuracy incorporating both washes and dry brushwork in each background, the artists portray the birds in their natural habitat.

Kathy Golden is a San Francisco artist who specializes in realistic watercolor, and pen and ink illustrations. She has shown extensively in both group and individual shows in Idaho, where she resided from 1977 to 1985. Last year her painting of the Haas-Lilienthal house in San Francisco was selected as an award winner at the Palo Alto Historical Homes Society show, but her favorite subjects are drawn from nature.

A Bay Area native, Deborah Cotter has spent a great portion of her life observing and drawing the birds in this area.

The Elkhorn Slough Reserve Visitors Center is open Wednesday through Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is located at 1700 Elkhorn Road, south of Watsonville and east of Moss Landing.

Olio Revue is an old-time variety show that features songs, dances and melodramatic skits.

It can be viewed at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through January at the historic theater located on Pacific Street at Scott in Monterey. There will be no performances the weekend of Dec. 25-26. A special presentation of Olio Revue will be staged on New Year's Eve, Thursday, Dec. 31.

Tickets are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and teens and $4 for children 12 and younger. For information, call 375-4916.

Career-building workshop sponsored by local YWCA

The Monterey YWCA announces a new eight-week series of Career Bridge workshops beginning 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 5 and running through Tuesday Feb. 23.

Career Bridge is designed for displaced homemakers, single parents, low-income women and victims of domestic violence. The sessions focus on self-esteem, career planning, resume writing, goal setting and other job-related issues.

Career Bridge was created in January 1987 and has assisted more than 250 women since that time. The program provides a supportive environment for women to discover their unique talents as well as network with other women and community representatives. In addition to workshops, Career Bridge provides individual assistance by appointment in job search skills and employer contacts.

Fees are on a sliding scale. All services are free to income eligible participants. Child care is available by prearrangement.

For more information, contact Career Bridge at the YWCA, 404 Camino El Estero, Monterey, 93940 or call 649-0834.

The program is also held in Salinas, 10 a.m. to noon, Thursdays. Call 758-5769 for information on the Salinas location and registration.

State-wide whale watching programs announced

The annual migration of California gray whales from Alaska to Mexico has begun, and state park rangers will conduct whale watch programs at several points along the Pacific Coast.

Whale watch programs will be offered on weekends in January and February at Garrapata State Park, located seven miles south of Carmel. For details, phone the Big Sur District at 667-2315. Whale watches will also be scheduled when whale sightings are likely at Patrick's Point State Park, 25 miles north of Eureka. For further information, phone the Klamath District at (707) 445-6547.

A state park ranger or volunteer naturalist will meet visitors for a whale watch from Bodega Head from 1 to 4 p.m. each Saturday through Feb. 7, and again from Feb. 27 through April 3.

Visitors will get help in sighting whales and other marine mammals. They will be shown whale artifacts and will get a lot of information on the migrating gray whales. For more information, phone (707) 875-3483 or (707) 865-2391.

Bodega Head is near the community of Bodega Bay, on the southern Sonoma County coast. The headland extends south from Sonoma Coast State Beach.

State Park rangers says visitors' chances of spotting the 30-ton ocean mammals from those vantage points are very good. They should look for the spouting from a whale's blow hole, followed by the rise of tail flukes. The rangers urge whale watchers to bring binoculars and wear warm clothing.

Gray whales, the only species with a regular migration route close to the mainland, spend their summers in the Bering Sea, near Alaska, where they eat tons of krill — small crustaceans.

In December, January, and February, they swim south along the North American coast to the lagoons of Baja California, where they mate and bear their young. Then, in February, March, and April, they migrate north along a similar route, but generally farther from the shore.

Characters of yesteryear find a place in new book

The years had been kind to the auburn-haired charismatic; she was truly a beautiful and seductive woman.

'I worked in a period when the newspaper was not only the primary source of information but really the only source. Radio was in its infancy and television was many years away.'

Any thought of extending the tete-a-tete beyond the limits of an interview was canceled by the knowledge I would be expected to respond with daily coverage of the revival — a fate worse than death. Early on she asked me about my religion.

"I'm afraid," I told her, "that I'm something of a backslider from my Presbyterian upbringing."

"Oh, she laughed, "so many of my newspaper friends are."

Finally, I broached the inevitable question:

"Would you please tell me about disappearing in the surf of Carmel Bay and reappearing some months later in the Arizona desert. I'm particularly interested in your captors. Did they ask for ransom?"

She had expected the query.

"Oh, Mr. Hutchison," she countered, "that subject has been gone over so many times — can't we get back to my work for the Lord?"

1988 Mozart in Monterey will pay tribute to the master

PROMISING "a magnificent musical event which will draw the Monterey Peninsula to the attention of music lovers across the United States," Marion A. Martine, recently elected president of the board of directors of the Monterey Mozarteum, Inc., announced the concert schedule for the 1988 Mozart in Monterey Festival.

To take place June 14 through 19, the festival will feature orchestral performances by the Chamber Orchestra of America under the baton of Maestro Oleg Kovalenko, as well as several chamber music recitals presented by soloists from the orchestra. In order to make the concerts accessible to music lovers from throughout the area, the concerts will take place at the Sister Carlotta Center for the Performing Arts at Santa Catalina School in Monterey, and at Sunset Center in Carmel.

Martine also announced that the board of directors has engaged Shelly Gordon as manager of Mozart in Monterey. Gordon has served as an event coordinator and has been a peninsula resident for the past five years.

"We plan to continue in the fine tradition established by the 1986 festival," Martine said, "and I am very pleased to be able to assist in bringing this great music to peninsula audiences once again."

The Monterey Mozarteum will open its fund-raising campaign with a celebration of Mozart's birthday on Jan. 24 at the Monterey Bay Boat Works. Martine said that volunteers are being sought to assist with this event and with all other phases of the festival's operations.

Those interested should contact the Festival office at 499 Calle Principal, Monterey, CA 93940.

Gourmet Gala draws celebrities, celebrated chefs

THE MONTEREY Vineyard Gourmet Gala to benefit the March of Dimes will return Saturday, Jan. 16 in the Grand Ballroom of the Monterey Sheraton Hotel.

Monterey's third annual gala kicks off the March of Dimes' year-long 50th anniversary celebration. More than 25 national and local luminaries will prepare their favorite recipes in kitchen settings created by Monterey's most prestigious interior designers, bringing to life the gala's theme of "Our Golden Year."

Master of Ceremonies Allen Funt will be joined by celebrity chefs including actors and actresses, Ernest Borgnine, Barbara Eden, Lorenzo Lamas, Tab Hunter, Doug McClure, Hugh O'Brian, Roger Perry, Michael Swan (As The World Turns), Zelda Rubenstein (Poltergeist), and JoAnne Worley.

Other "chefs" include Monterey Vineyard Executive Vice President and Winemaster Cary Gott, civic leader Artie Early, Congressman and Mrs. Leon Panetta, Executive Director of the Monterey Film Festival and the Frohman Academy Mikel Pippi, James McGillen of Lorimar Productions, Alan Shugart of Seagate Industries, Monterey Assemblyman Sam Farr, Supervisor and Mrs. Sam Karas, wine merchant and grocer Darrell Corti, author Terry Allen, Donna Murray of the American Foundation for AIDS Research, author Tim Gallwey (Inner Game of Golf), plastic surgeon Dr. Stanley Frileck, Chief of Pediatrics at Monterey Community Hospital Dr. Shreve Archer, and fashion designer Monique Vendetti.

Judging the celebrity recipes are Sardine Factory co-owner Bert Cutino, author and cheesemaker Laura Chenel, Travel and Leisure publisher James Berrien, Sunset home economics editor Jerry Di Vecchio, Highlands Inn general manager Peter Komposch, Royal Viking Line's culinary director Daniel Durand, and cookbook author Maida Heatter (Maida Heatter's Great Desserts).

Interior designers responsible for the evening's ambiance through creative kitchen vignette showcases include Jan Gardner, Joy Geller, Charles Gruwell, Yoko-Margaret Whitaker, Joy Holland, Shene Kouretas, Linda Lamb, Sue Blondell, Ginna Landes, Nancy McIninch, T. Scott Moore, Rudy Reate, Jerry Welling, Thom Beckman and Larry Drenske.

This evening represents the culmination of year-long planning by a dedicated group of volunteers, headed by Artie Early. The Monterey Gourmet Gala is expected to raise $65,000 towards the prevention of birth defects. Betsy Farley, the March of Dimes Monterey Bay District Director, comments: "I'm astonished to realize there are nearly 150 volunteers pulling together to create this evening! This generous gift of their time and effort is overwhelming, and truly exemplifies the best in community support."

The evening begins with a reception showcasing Monterey County wines and restaurants. Guests mingle and watch celebrities prepare their entries for the competition.

While judges evaluate, a 12-course dinner of the celebrity recipes is duplicated by the Sheraton's Chef Heinz. An awards ceremony follows dinner. A silent auction highlights the evening with items including a 13-day Royal Viking European cruise, a weekend at Harvey's Resort in Tahoe, a Monterey Bay sunset cruise aboard the "Chardonnay," and dinner for 12 in The Monterey Vineyard's barrel room.

Music by The Royal Society Jazz Orchestra completes the evening.

Tickets are available (limited seating) at $150 per person.

For more information call the March of Dimes at 373-8482.

Park system fees restructured

MOST STATE park campsite and day-use fees will remain unchanged in 1988. Exceptions will be Hearst Castle tours, group camping and group day use.

Fees for several state park services have not been changed for several yars. Some of those fees will be increased to bring them in line with other California State Park fees and those of other public and private agencies, and to maintain the existing high standards of operation in units of the State Park System.

The following changes will be effective Jan. 1, 1988:

- Hearst Castle Tours: Fees for each of the four tours will be increased to $10 (from $8) for adults and to $5 (from $4) for ages 6-12. These will be the first fee increases for Hearst Castle since 1981. Children under 6 years of age are admitted free if they are accompanied by an adult and do not occupy a separate seat on the tour bus.

- Group Camping: The variable flat rate for different group camps will be increased to $30 - $150 (from $20 - $100) per night. The rate is based on the capacity of each group campsite. Youth groups receive a 50% discount.

- Group Day Use: The rate for group day-use areas will be increased to site capacity x $0.75 (from site capacity x $0.50) plus a 10% reservation fee except where parking space is limited. In those cases, the fee is the normal day-use fee per vehicle plus the reservation fee (reservations through the park only).

- Additional Motor Vehicle for Family Camping: Fee increased to $4 (from $3) per night for each additional motor vehicle if used in the park.

- Trail Camps (hikers and bicyclists): Fee increased to $2 (from $1) per person per night.

- Day Use for Persons Entering by Bus: Fee increased to $15 (from $10) per bus with capacity of 10 to 24 passengers, and to $30 (from $20) per bus with capacity of 25 or more passengers. For mini-bus or van (9 or fewer passengers), the normal vehicle day-use fee is charged.

- Dogs for Day Use: Fee increased to $1 (from $0.50) per dog (no charge for guide dogs).

- Angel Island State Park Boat Slips (day use): Fee increased to $5 (from $3) per day and to $10 (from $6) if the boat size prevents mooring two boats per slip.

- Floating Campsites at Lake Oroville State Recreation Area: Fee increased to $50 (from $35) per night.

- Cabin Rentals, Mt. Tamalpais State Park: Fee increased to $25 (from $15) per night.

- Cabin Rentals, Malakoff Diggins State HIstoric Park: Fee decreased to $15 (from $25) per night.

All other State Park System fees will remain unchanged in 1988.

Point Sur Lightstation weekly tours available

There is a new 24-hour information phone number for updated tour information, 625-4419.

In January and February, tours will include whale watching. There will be a member of the Cetacean Society on each of the tours, along with the Point Sur Docents to answer any questions and assist visitors in sighting whales. Visitors are encouraged to bring binoculars and cameras.

Tours begin every Sunday at 10 a.m. sharp. Visitors should arrive about 9:30 a.m. to be sure there is space on the tour.

Meet at the gate located one-quarter mile north of the Point Sur Naval Facility.

Camerata Singers shine at Mission

VAHE ASLANIAN, director of the Camerata Singers, chose an all-Hispanic Christmas program for this year's Music at the Missions series. The final concert was at the Carmel Mission Basilica Sunday night. The music was wonderful, and the choices so appropriate that one wonders why it isn't done more often.

O magnum mysterium, a popular motet by Victoria, opened the program and was followed by motets by the other two of the Big Three of 16th century Spanish music, Morales and Guerrero. In spite of its sumptuous sound, Spanish music of this period is austere in comparison with contemporary Italian music. It is very intense, reflecting a more than casual devotion. The three motets exemplified this, as well as the individual styles. Only the Guerrero appeared to give the singers any trouble (aside from the high, soft opening which would tax the good nature of a seasoned pro) as there was some uncertainty in negotiating the unusual polyphonic lines. Nevertheless, the overall effect was excellent.

A group of carols followed, some well-known to me, some totally new: two Spanish, one Catalonian, one Venezuelan.

FOLLOWING INTERMISSION, the choir returned for three large pieces: Navidad Nuestra and Missa Criolla, by Ariel Ramirez (1921-) and Concierto di Navidad by Paul Czonka (1905-). The latter, Viennese by birth, qualifies here by his many years of activity in Cuba.

Navidad Nuestra is in six short movements which describe the story of the Holy Family from the annunciation to the flight into Egypt. The poetry, by Ramirez and Argentine poet Felix Luna, is very rich in a peculiarly Hispanic manner, recalling the pastoral poetic styles of the 16th century. Missa Criolla is a well-known folk mass which utilizes idiomatic dance rhythms and melodic twists. Ramirez also employs guitar, charango (a small, guitar-related instrument with a slightly brassy sound), and a battery of typical percussion instruments. Added to this (by Aslanian, I believe) were harpsichord and harp, which fit in perfectly.

The pieces are very effective in performance. As one would expect, they are strongly rhythmic with the patterns typical of a variety of dances.

The Czonka piece, three movements describing different aspects of the religious season and set for soprano, women's chorus and harp, was less successful. I found the settings labored, and the musical language involved not very compelling. For example, "La Nana," a popular carol, charming in its simplicity, was so "worked" that its inherent charm was buried.

The Camerata Singers performed at a high level throughout, problems occurring only in those spots where they are certainly understandable. In general, I also would have liked more strongly marked rhythms in this music, but there are all minor complaints. It was a thoroughly enjoyable concert.

Aslanian and his singers were given very capable support by William Zeitler, harpsichordist; Jeff Workman, guitar; Beverly Bellows, harp.

Jose de Cordoba and Ignacio Lopez were the tenor soloists; Kelley Alexander, baritone. Except for Lopez' high, clear voice, the sound did not project adequately into the hall.

Ignacio Lopez was also the charango player. Between his two functions, he threatened to show.

Concerts like this are important for the music they make available. In the U.S., we tend to look toward Europe, ignoring the hemisphere in which we reside. Musically, this is a fascinating place with infinite variety. We look forward to more.

Poetry contest seeks entries

The Coastal Classic Poetry Contest is offering $1,000 in cash prizes to new poets and professionals who enter this competition.

Besides the $500 grand prize, there is a $250 first prize, a $100 second prize and three third prizes of $50 each. All poems will be considered for publication in the 1988 American Anthology of Contemporary Poetry. Winners will be notified by May 1.

Each poet may enter one poem, 20 lines or less, on any subject, written in any style. Poem and poet's name and address must be typed or printed on one side of a sheet of typing paper. Poet should keep a copy since entry can't be returned. There is no entry fee for this contest.

Entries should be mailed by Feb. 15 to: Coastal Classic Poetry Contest, Great Lakes Poetry Press, P.O. Box 56703, Harwood Heights, IL 60656.

Planners needed for Jan. 16 mothers' march

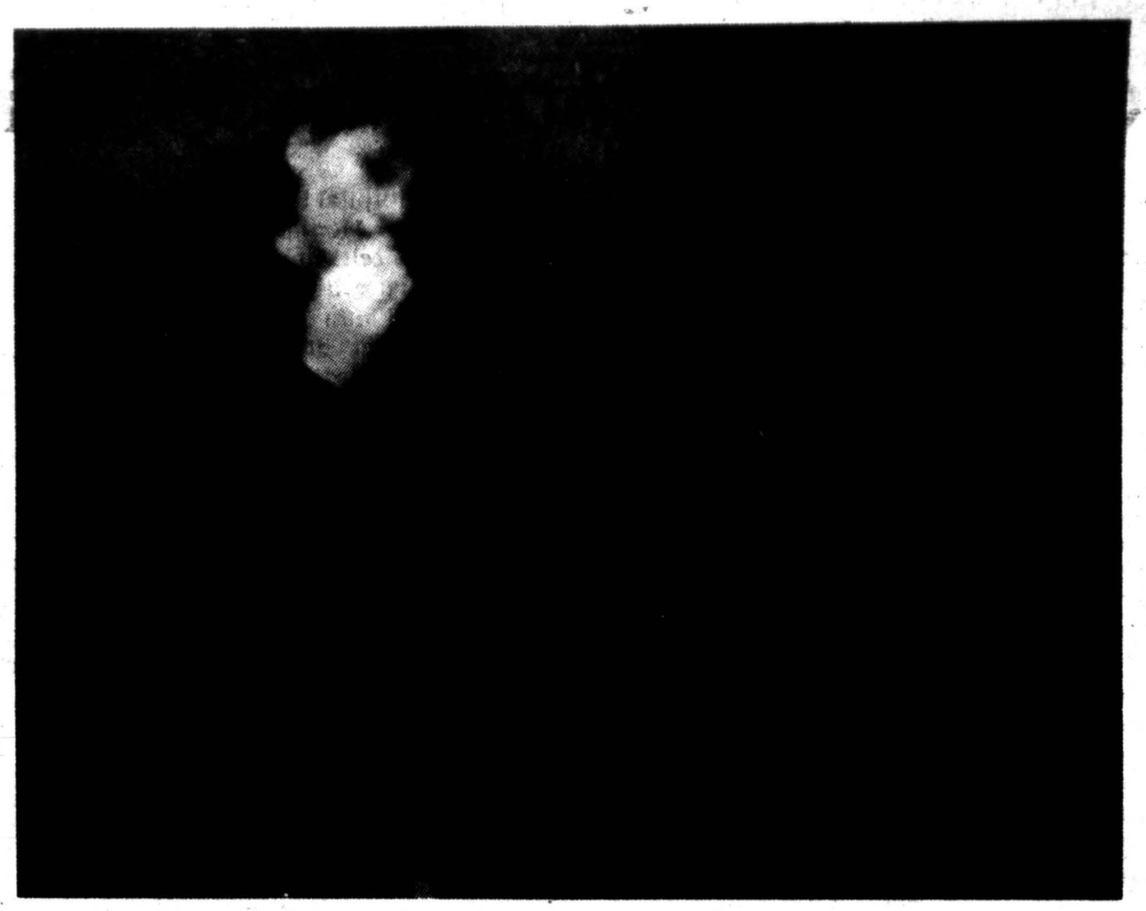
The March of Dimes is looking for a few good people to help plan the mothers' march set for the weekend of Jan. 16, 1988.

The march is designed to collect donations for the fight against birth defects in the annual door-to-door campaign. Judy Souza, mothers' march supervisor, has a service group organizing the march in Salinas but needs one or more groups to do the planning for Monterey and Pacific Grove.

She assures any group interested that the members need not do any phone solicitation or go door-to-door themselves. They will be the planners.

Any group interested is asked to call Souza at 646-9255 or Volunteers In Action at 373-6177.

The Holiday Project needs volunteers to deliver wrapped gifts to patients and residents of local hospitals and homes later this month. Donated gifts have been wrapped by volunteers and the distribution is now needed. Call Pat McQueen at 646-1800.



Local photographers honored at The Friends

Free shuttle still operating in Monterey

The Free Shuttle serving downtown Monterey, Fisherman's Wharf, Cannery Row and the Monterey Bay Aquarium will add an extra week of service from Monday, Dec. 28 through Friday, Jan. 1.

The Free Shuttle hours of operation for that week will be 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

The Free Shuttle is currently running on weekends — Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Sundays, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The Free Shuttle runs approximately every 20 minutes from the East Custom House Garage located at Tyler Street and Del Monte Avenue in Monterey. All-day parking is available in the garage for $3. The Shuttle itself is free.

Friends of Photography announces 1988 workshops

THE FRIENDS of Photography will offer eight workshops in the San Francisco and Monterey Bay areas this year, with seminars ranging from the Ansel Adams Workshop to Electronic Imaging.

Each workshop will explore a variety of aesthetic and technical concerns in the photographic arts, as well as in the history and criticism of the medium. These workshops offer an opportunity for individuals to meet with a distinguished, creative faculty in an unmatched environment.

Most of the workshops are designed for participants interested in all aspects of the photographic arts, including practicing artists and commercial photographers, writers, historians, critics, collectors or others interested in fine art photography, though some programs recommend a specific knowledge of the field.

The 1988 workshop topics, dates, locations and faculty are listed below. Additional information will be contained in the illustrated, comprehensive brochure published in February.

The brochure is mailed to all members of The Friends and members of many other photography organizations. To receive a brochure, send a card with your name and address to Workshop Program, The Friends of Photography, 101 The Embarcadero, Suite 210, San Francisco, CA 94105 or call (415) 391-7500.

The Friends of Photography 1988 Workshop Schedule

Extending the Portrait, June 11 - 15, Mills College, Oakland; Faculty: Bill Burke, Judy Dater, Jim Goldberg and Joyce Tenneson.

Electronic Imaging, June 25 - 29, Mills College; Faculty: Paul Berger, Robert Fichter and Sheila Pinkel.

The Annual Members Workshop, July 1 - 4, Mills College; Faculty: Dr. Harold Edgerton, Martha Strawn and others to be announced.

The Photograph as Document, July 13 - 17, Dominican College, San Rafael; Faculty: Larry Clark, Sandra Heisert, William Klein, Pedro Meyer and Jim Stone.

The Art of Bookmaking, July 25 - 29, Dominican College; Faculty: Susan Kae Grant and Keith Smith.

Advanced Black and White Seminar, August 3 - 6, Robert Louis Stevenson School, Pebble Beach; Faculty: Morley Baer and John Sexton.

The Ansel Adams Workshop, August 8 - 14, Robert Louis Stevenson School; Faculty: Morley Baer, Ruth Bernhard, Ralph Gibson, Eikoh Hosoe and John Sexton.

Folk artists may apply for grants

THE CALIFORNIA Arts Council will fund Master-Apprentice Grants through its Traditional Folk Arts Program. The deadline for applying is Jan. 15, 1988.

Applicants must apply as a partnership, a team of a learner and an expert in a traditional folk art form. Projects will begin after April 15, 1988. The selected master-apprentice partnerships will receive $1,500 to $2,500 depending on the art form and other considerations to cover a period of three-12 months.

The funds are for supplies, for the master artists' instructional fees, and for the cost of travel for the apprentice. All apprentices must be California residents.

To order an application, contact the California Arts Council, 1901 Broadway, Suite A, Sacramento, CA 95818-2492; telephone (916) 445-1530. The Traditional Folk Arts program manager is Barbara LaPan Rahm.

In this new grants program, the Arts Council recognizes the vital role the master-apprentice relationship plays in conserving California's deverse cultural heritage. These grants support a learning experience for individuals who have shown a commitment to and a talent for a specific artistic folk tradition. The Arts Council defines folk art as a community-based expression in craft, music, dance, ritual, etc., which is shared within ethnic, family, occupational, regional, or religious groups.

The California Arts Council was established in 1976 to promote artistic awareness and participation in California. It is a state agency which provides grants and technical assistance to artists and to nonprofit arts organizations. Applications are reviewed and rated at public meetings by outside professional peer panels and receive final approval from the appointed eleven-member council.

SPCA offers pet care tips

The Monterey County SPCA urges you to use a leash when out walking or jogging with your dog. Allowing your pet to roam without a leash is not only against the law but puts the animal in serious danger because of the great possibility of being hit by a moving vehicle. In addition, there is the strong chance of an unleashed animal being poisoned by insecticides, abused by a stranger or ending up as a lost dog.

Statistics show that the average life span of a free-roaming pet is only three years. A free-roaming pet causes major problems in a neighborhood by tearing open trash bags, damaging yards and antagonizing those pets who are cared for in a responsible manner. Unfortunately, many strays bite people and if the owner is located, he quite often winds up in court for violating existing laws.

To eliminate all problems associated with stray animals, leash your dog everytime you take him or her out of the house with you.

Wine appreciation class reopens in January

The Monterey County Wine Society's Wine Appreciation class starts its winter schedule Jan. 6 at Monterey Peninsula Winery's tasting room, 786 Wave St., Monterey.

The class meets at 7:30 p.m. every Wednesday and participants must pre-register with Don Marks by calling 659-2909.

The class consists of learning components and varietal distinctions, wine history, and tastings. Wines of the world, with emphasis on California and French, will be studied.

Marks, who has instructor status with the Society of Wine Educators and has won numerous ribbons for his home made wines, has taught the class for 10 years. Last summer the class judgged wines at the Monterey County Fair under Marks' supervision.

Starting fee is $10 per person and each class costs around $4 which defrays cost of the wines.

Registration is now being accepted for the Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops first session for their fifth season.

A gathering of Monterey Peninsula photographers will lead a five-and-one-half day workshop for intermediate to advanced black and white photographers that is devoted to exploring the medium in a variety of areas.

Faculty and guest instructors include Edna Bullock, Robert Byers, Rod Dresser, Roger Fremier, Richard Garrod, Cole Weston, Ron James, Henry Gilpin, Huntington Witherill, Brad Cole, Richard McClurkin, Gail Pierce, David Stroud, Ron James, Pat Ross, John Sexton, and others.

Information will be provided through demonstrations, two field sessions, discussions of personal approaches, portfolio showings and critiques, lectures, and hands-on experience both in the darkroom and lab.

Early tuition fee is $195 required by Jan. 15. The $215 regular tuition is required by March 15. Fee for lodging and meals at Asilomar is $225, required by Feb. 15.

Brochures are available at most local camera stores or contact Monterey Peninsula Photographic Workshops, 980 Fremont St., Monterey, CA 93940, or call 624-6870.

Art classes geared to kids

A new class called "Teaching Art to Children" will be offerred during the Wintersession at Monterey Peninsula College. The Art 296 class will explain to parents and educators the process of children's art development, ages 2 through adolescense. Emphasis is on growth during all stages of child development and choices for art activities.

The class is taught by Constance Gamiere, who has a master's degree in art education and who uses the Lowenfeld approach to art education. The class includes methods for working with handicapped and gifted children as well as art as therapy. The Lowenfeld approach is chid-centered.

The class meets four times during the Wintersession...Wednesdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Register at the MPC Registration Building by Jan. 6.

Constance Gamiere is a drama instructor at MPC, designing all the costumes for the MPC Main Stage productions. She received her master's degree for Miami University, Oxford, Ohio under Dr. John Michael, the American authority on the Lowenfeld approach to art education. She was a graduate assistant to Dr. Michael.

JACK WALL'S painting, In the Rough, will be displayed at the "Boxing Day" art and craft show, presented Saturay through Wednesday, Dec. 26 through 30 at the American Tin Cannery. The cannery is located near the Monterey Bay Aquarium, at 125 Ocean View Blvd. in Pacific Grove.

Art show arrives at Tin Cannery

THE FIRST Boxing Day Art and Craft Show arrives at the American Tin Cannery outlet center in Pacific Grove starting Boxing Day, Dec. 26 and continuing through Dec. 30.

The exhibit will offer an array of paintings, photography and crafts. Carmel artist Jack Wall will show wildlife paintings. Nisperos features highly textured acrylic landscapes; Bob Meetin's photographs will be displayed. San Francisco artist Zokas paints on papyrus and also designs fashion belts. Country ceramics will be shown by Esrock from Santa Paula. Stained glass and handmade paper will also be featured.

The American Tin Cannery, a complex of restaurants, specialty stores and newly opened factory direct outlet stores, is located at the north end of Cannery Row, around the corner from the Monterey Bay Aquarium, at 125 Ocean View Blvd. in Pacific Grove.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Free MST shuttle busses stop near the cannery.

For more information, call the Carmel Art Guild, 625-0931.

Tax aide volunteers recruited

Volunteer tax aide counselors are needed, according to the American Association of Retired Persons' Tax Aide Program. They are needed to work from Feb. 1 through April 15, 1988, to help older taxpayers prepare their federal and state income tax returns.

Individuals with aptitude for tax work, experience in filing their own returns and good communication skills are urged to sign up.

Volunteer counselors are trained in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service and the Franchise Tax Board. Interested persons should call 647-8190.

Seniors offered free health checks

Free health check-ups for older adults are offered by the Senior Citizen and Nursing Services (SCANS) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Persons over age 55 are eligible for this service.

Appointments are required for check-ups. They are offered in Pacific Grove at the Community Center, 515 Junipero; and in Carmel at the Presbyterian Church, Ocean and Junipero.

To make an appointment, call 899-4271.

Adventure House

Let's say you're at Highway 1 and Rio Road. Drive south 4 miles, past Pt. Lobos State Park, past the Highlands Inn and across a short bridge. Turn right onto Spindrift Road and immediately right again to No. 159. A curving drive brings you down to the house.

Its wide board and wide battens, designed by Will Shaw in 1963 and added to (by him) in 1977. The result is a quite fantastic cliffside dwelling with 3 bedrooms, 3 baths, a library and one of the most marvelous ocean views on the entire coast. Directly below you, perhaps 100 feet or more, is Wildcat Cove, a narrow inlet walled by granite cliffs, dotted with sea rocks, restless and moving with the ever approaching waves. This is a floor show that never ends, that is constantly changing, always absorbing.

This is what you see from the great 26x20 living room, through the wall of windows that faces the sea, and the broad deck just outside. The living room is high, about 18 feet, vaulted and supported by giant pine beams, dark stained.

There are 6 kinds of wood in the interior; cedar panelled walls in the original section, hemlock ceilings, redwood vertical planking in the newer section, birch in the cabinetry, oak floors and the sturdy pine beams which are notched-in, not nailed.

A tour of the house is too adventurous to describe. The kitchen is tucked in across from the entrance, with a service bar across to the living room. A panelled study is around to the right, and behind it is a large bedroom and excitingly papered bath.

At left of the living room is the sizeable, skylighted dining room; and beyond that the master suite, panelled in redwood, with a wildly papered luxurious bath and dressing area. Windows span the west wall and look to the sea.

The 3rd bedroom is up a carpeted stair and on a balcony overlooking the living room with its massive fireplace at the far end. Its bath and a dressing room are behind it. And behind that, a large skylighted, oak-floored storage area.

This house is a continuing adventure: trees, patios, decks, broad thermo-paned windows, sliding doors, vaulted ceilings, gardens and the endlessly changing sea. It's on one very special acre. $995,000.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 47 Part 1

When WALTER and HAROLD NIELSEN came to Carmel from Fresno in 1930, they found themselves in competition with 10 other local grocery stores. It was just one year after the great stock market crash, probably the worst time in history to start a new business. But, possibly because they were both in their 20's, they were too inexperienced to recognize the odds and plunged doggedly ahead. Almost at once they established the policies which carried them through the Depression and which continue unchanged today: (1) Quality. If produce were in any way inferior, they wouldn't sell it. If meats were in any way less than No. 1, you couldn't buy it. (2) Service. They delivered, not just to your home but to your icebox...anything from a jar of jam to a $100 order. (3) Credit. This was a very important commodity in the early 30's, and they used it to establish many long term customer relationships. Some of the accounts reached large amounts, but almost without exception all were collected. WALTER became "Mr. Inside," stocking shelves, filling orders, keeping the books and seeing to it that customers got what they wanted when they wanted it. HAROLD became "Mr. Outside," searching for sources of supply, selecting the best meats and produce from Valley farms, securing the exclusive business of retirement homes, obtaining Carmel's first off-sale liquor license after Prohibition, steadily improving the quality of Nielsen's fabulous wine cellar.
